EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

The Opportunity Before Etihad

Global aviation operates within one of the most demanding service environments in the world. Aircraft operations, weather patterns, air traffic coordination, and international network complexity create a dynamic system where schedule adjustments and disruptions are an unavoidable reality.

For airlines that position themselves as premium hospitality brands, these moments carry particular significance. When travel plans change unexpectedly, guests look to the airline not only for logistical solutions, but also for reassurance, clarity, and confidence. How an airline responds during disruption often shapes guest perception of the brand more powerfully than routine travel experiences.

> Guests rarely remember routine operations. They remember how an airline responded when their journey became uncertain.

During disruption events, guests interact with multiple departments in rapid succession — contact center, airport guest services, and flight crew. Each interaction represents a moment where the airline's service philosophy is either reinforced or diluted. When these teams respond with a shared understanding of standards and recovery approach, the guest experiences consistency and professionalism. When approaches vary between departments, even effective operational solutions may feel fragmented.

For Etihad Airways — the national carrier of the United Arab Emirates and a global ambassador of Abu Dhabi's tradition of generous hospitality — the opportunity is not simply to manage disruptions efficiently, but to ensure that every guest interaction during these moments reflects the airline's commitment to excellence, dignity, and care.

OUR PROPOSAL

Beyond the Magic proposes a structured engagement designed to strengthen alignment across the three operational environments most responsible for guest interaction during disruption recovery:

- Contact Center Operations
- Airport Guest Services
- Flight Crew

Through a four-phase methodology, Beyond the Magic will collaborate with Etihad leadership to define a shared service purpose, establish clear service standards, translate those standards into observable behaviors, and equip operational leaders to reinforce them across departments.

OUR METHODOLOGY

A Four-Phase Path to Unified Service

Beyond the Magic structures every engagement around four disciplined phases — each building upon the last to move from discovery through sustained operational ownership. This methodology ensures the service framework reflects Etihad's operational realities and is reinforced by the leaders who deliver the guest experience every day.

I — ARCHITECT IT

Operational discovery and analysis of current disruption recovery practices across Contact Center, Airport Guest Services, and Flight Crew.

II — BUILD IT

Leadership alignment sessions to define a shared service purpose, establish service standards, and translate those standards into observable behaviors.

III — ACTIVATE IT

Training and activation of approximately 30–40 operational leaders who will deploy the service framework across their respective departments.

IV — SUSTAIN IT

Follow-up observation, leadership feedback sessions, and reinforcement guidance to support long-term adoption of the service alignment framework.

THE OPPORTUNITY

Understanding the Opportunity

Modern global airlines operate within an increasingly complex environment. International networks connect hundreds of destinations across multiple continents, while aircraft utilization, weather patterns, and regulatory requirements demand constant coordination. Within this environment, disruption events are inevitable.

During disruption events, the guest journey unfolds across several departments in rapid succession. A traveler may begin by contacting the airline to understand how a schedule change affects their itinerary. Shortly thereafter they arrive at the airport seeking guidance on alternative arrangements. During boarding and flight operations, they rely on the flight crew to provide reassurance and clarity.

Each of these interactions represents a moment where the airline's culture and service philosophy become visible to the guest.

WHY THIS MATTERS FOR ETIHAD NOW

A Defining Expression of Abu Dhabi's Hospitality

The global aviation industry is experiencing renewed growth and heightened operational complexity. As passenger volumes increase, the importance of operational coordination and service consistency becomes ever more visible to international travelers.

Guests increasingly evaluate airlines not only on punctuality or route networks, but on the quality of care they receive during unexpected situations. When journeys change unexpectedly, travelers form lasting impressions based on how confidently and compassionately the airline responds.

For Etihad Airways — as the national carrier of the United Arab Emirates and a global ambassador of Abu Dhabi's tradition of hospitality — disruption recovery carries additional significance. The values of professionalism, dignity, and generous care that define the Etihad experience must remain visible precisely in the moments of greatest operational complexity.

> In these moments, the guest does not see departments. They perceive the airline as one unified expression of the Guest experience.

By aligning operational teams around a shared service philosophy and equipping leaders to reinforce consistent standards, Etihad has the opportunity to ensure that disruption recovery becomes an extension of the airline's hospitality tradition — rather than simply an operational process.

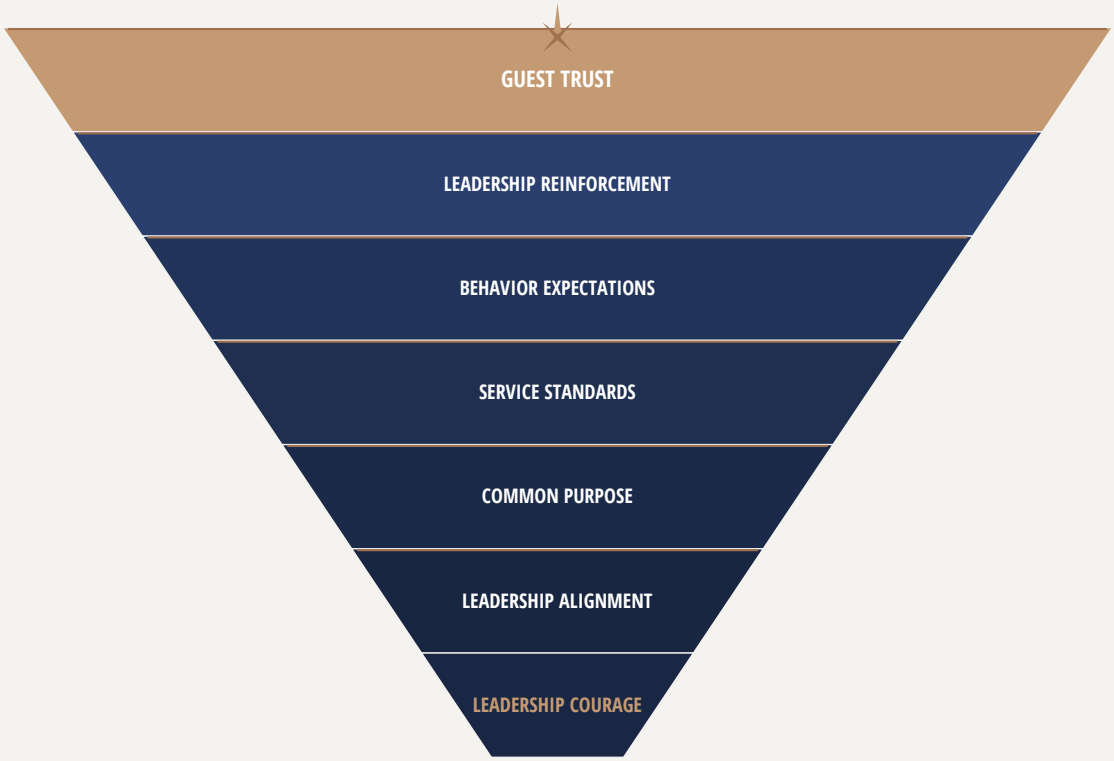
OUR PHILOSOPHY

The Service Alignment Pyramid

Sustainable service culture emerges through a sequence of leadership actions that build upon one another. Beyond the Magic illustrates this progression through the Service Alignment Pyramid — a framework that clarifies the relationship between leadership behavior, operational standards, and guest trust.



The Service Alignment Pyramid

At the foundation is Leadership Courage — the willingness to define what service excellence truly means and to hold that standard consistently. From this foundation, Leadership Alignment ensures that leaders across departments share a common understanding of expectations.

A Common Purpose then guides teams in understanding why their work matters to the guest. From that shared purpose, clear Service Standards describe the level of care guests should expect. These standards must be translated into Behavior Expectations — observable actions that frontline teams can demonstrate in real situations. Finally, Leadership Reinforcement ensures the standards are practiced daily, not occasionally. When these elements are aligned, the result is Guest Trust — a consistent, professional, and reliable experience across every interaction.

OPERATIONAL CONTEXT

The Guest Disruption Journey

Within airline operations, disruption events unfold rapidly and involve multiple points of guest interaction. Understanding how guests experience these moments provides essential insight into where service alignment is most critical.

The Guest Disruption Journey

The guest experiences one journey — the airline as a single, unified expression of hospitality.

The disruption journey typically begins when an operational change affects a scheduled flight. Some travelers receive digital notifications, while others contact the airline directly — making the Contact Center the first human interaction point in the recovery process.

As guests arrive at the airport, Airport Guest Services teams assist with rebooking, check-in adjustments, and boarding coordination. These interactions are particularly significant because guests may arrive with uncertainty or concern related to changes in their travel plans.

Once the journey continues, the Flight Crew becomes the final interaction point — providing reassurance, updates, and the hospitality that shapes the lasting impression of the experience.

> Although each department operates within a distinct environment, the guest perceives a single journey. Alignment across these teams is therefore not a refinement — it is a necessity.

THE ENGAGEMENT

Engagement Overview

The Beyond the Magic engagement is designed to help Etihad strengthen alignment across the operational teams most responsible for guest interaction during disruption recovery. The approach recognizes that sustainable service excellence does not emerge from isolated training initiatives, but from leadership clarity, operational standards, and consistent reinforcement across departments.

The engagement follows a structured four-phase methodology — Architect It, Build It, Activate It, Sustain It — each phase building upon the previous to ensure the service framework reflects Etihad's operational realities while creating a clear path toward adoption across all departments.

PHASE I

Architect It

Operational Discovery & Leadership Insights

PHASE II

Build It

Service Standards & Behavior Development

PHASE III

Activate It

Leader Training & Framework Activation

PHASE IV

Sustain It

Observation, Reinforcement & Long-Term Adoption

The pages that follow detail the purpose, key activities, deliverables, and outcomes of each phase. The engagement is designed so that each phase builds deliberately upon the last — and at every major milestone, Beyond the Magic will present findings and recommendations to senior leadership before advancing, ensuring Etihad's priorities and approval shape the work at every step.

PHASE I

Architect It

Operational Discovery & Leadership Insights

PURPOSE OF THE PHASE

The purpose of the Architect It phase is to develop a clear understanding of how disruption recovery currently occurs across Etihad's operational teams. By examining both operational processes and service interactions, this phase identifies opportunities to strengthen alignment and improve the consistency of the guest recovery experience.

While each department may perform its responsibilities effectively, differences in communication approach, service interpretation, or recovery priorities can create inconsistent guest experiences. The Architect It phase provides a structured opportunity to observe the operational environment, gather leadership insights, and identify where greater alignment would strengthen the overall recovery experience.

KEY ACTIVITIES

- Operational discovery sessions with leadership representatives from airport guest services, contact center operations, and flight crews.
- Leadership interviews to understand how disruption recovery decisions are currently communicated and reinforced within each department.
- Observation and analysis of the guest disruption journey across key operational interaction points.
- Identification of service alignment opportunities that could strengthen consistency across teams.

DELIVERABLES

- Discovery Insights Report — Summarizing key observations and opportunities identified during operational analysis.
- Guest Disruption Journey Mapping — Validating how guests currently experience disruption recovery across departments.
- Service Alignment Opportunity Summary — Highlighting areas where leadership alignment and service standards could strengthen the guest experience.

OUTCOME

By the conclusion of the Architect It phase, Etihad leadership will have a shared understanding of how disruption recovery is currently experienced across operational teams and where opportunities exist to strengthen alignment. This shared understanding creates the foundation for defining the service framework in Phase II — Build It.

PHASE II

Build It

Service Standards & Behavior Development

PURPOSE OF THE PHASE

The Build It phase aligns leadership around a shared service philosophy and defines the standards that will guide disruption recovery across Etihad's operational teams — developed collaboratively to reflect the airline's hospitality philosophy and operational realities.

KEY ACTIVITIES

Senior Leader Alignment Sessions

Senior leaders collaborate across departments to define the common purpose and service standards that will shape the guest experience during disruption recovery.

Champions Team Workshops

Operational leaders from all three departments work together to translate service standards into observable behaviors — focusing on how those standards guide communication, decision-making, and guest interactions during disruption events.

DELIVERABLES

- Common Purpose Statement — The guiding philosophy for disruption recovery across all departments.
- Service Standards Framework — Defining the expectations that should guide guest interactions during operational disruptions.
- Behavior Guidelines — Translating service standards into observable behaviors reinforced within daily operations.
- Leadership Alignment Documentation — Capturing the outcomes of the alignment sessions for reference and reinforcement.

OUTCOME

Etihad leadership will have a clear service framework defining how the airline serves guests during disruption events — giving operational leaders the clarity to reinforce consistent expectations across departments.

PHASE III

Activate It

Leader Training & Framework Activation

PURPOSE OF THE PHASE

The Activate It phase equips approximately 30 to 40 operational leaders — supervisors, managers, and senior team members — to become internal champions of the service framework, reinforcing standards with the frontline teams they interact with daily.

KEY ACTIVITIES

- Train the Trainer Program — Participants experience the service framework through a structured learning program introducing the philosophy, service standards, and behavioral expectations developed in Phase II.
- Facilitation Skill Development — Leaders practice delivering the service framework content and guiding discussions with their teams.
- Operational Scenario Exercises — Participants explore real disruption scenarios and practice applying service standards within realistic operational contexts.
- Department Activation Planning — Leaders develop plans for introducing the service framework within their departments and reinforcing it within daily operations.

DELIVERABLES

- Leader Training Curriculum
- Facilitator Guides for internal training sessions
- Participant materials and reference tools
- Department Activation Plans

OUTCOME

Participating leaders will be ready to introduce the service framework within their departments and reinforce its standards daily — driven from within, without dependency on external support.

Engagement Scope Note — The Train the Trainer activation described above is included in Options B and C. Under Option A — Framework Delivery, Phase III materials are transferred to Etihad's internal training teams for independent rollout. See the Investment section for phase-by-phase scope detail across all options.

PHASE IV

Sustain It

Observation, Reinforcement & Long-Term Adoption

PURPOSE OF THE PHASE

The Sustain It phase reinforces the service framework and supports Etihad leadership in maintaining the alignment established throughout the engagement. Organizational initiatives often lose momentum when reinforcement mechanisms are not clearly defined. This phase provides an opportunity to review implementation progress, observe how the framework is being reinforced, and provide guidance for continued development.

KEY ACTIVITIES

- Follow-Up Operational Observation — Beyond the Magic consultants return to observe how the service framework is being activated across operational teams.
- Leadership Feedback Sessions — Leaders participating in the program share insights about the activation process and discuss opportunities to strengthen reinforcement practices.
- Program Evaluation — Beyond the Magic evaluates implementation progress and identifies opportunities to strengthen adoption across departments.

DELIVERABLES

- Implementation Progress Report
- Leadership Reinforcement Guidance
- Recommendations for Continued Development

OUTCOME

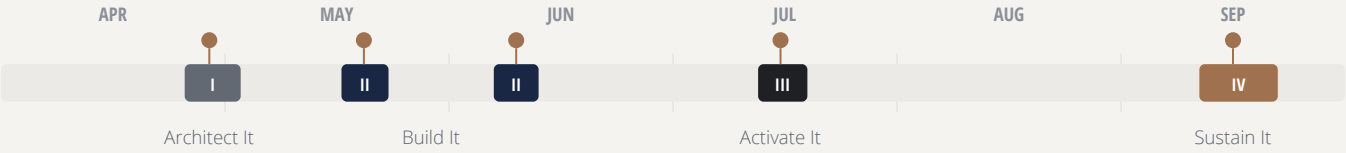
By the conclusion of the Sustain It phase, Etihad leadership will have clear guidance on how to continue reinforcing the service framework across departments — ensuring that the alignment achieved throughout the engagement continues to strengthen over time.

Engagement Scope Note — Phase IV — Sustain It — is included in Option C (Framework, Activation & Assurance). For organizations selecting Option B, this phase can be structured as a follow-on statement of work after the initial activation is complete. See the Investment section for detail.

PROPOSED TIMELINE

Engagement Schedule — 2026

This engagement unfolds across six months of active collaboration — April through September 2026. The work between on-site visits is substantial: framework development, content design, leadership preparation, and organizational alignment all advance remotely between sessions. The five on-site windows below represent the moments that require in-person presence in Abu Dhabi. All dates are indicative and will be confirmed in close coordination with Etihad leadership.



PH.	ON-SITE SESSION	PROPOSED WINDOW	PRIMARY FOCUS
I	Architect It	Apr 28 – May 1	Operational discovery sessions and leadership interviews across Contact Center, Airport Guest Services, and Flight Crew. Disruption journey mapping and alignment opportunity analysis.
II	Senior Leader Alignment	May 19 – 20	Senior leaders from all three departments collaborate to define the common purpose and service standards that will guide disruption recovery across the organization.
II	Champions Team Workshops	Jun 9 – 10	Operational leaders translate service standards into observable behavioral expectations relevant to their specific teams and daily working environments.
III	Leader Activation Program	Jul 14 – 17	30 to 40 operational leaders complete the activation program and are fully equipped to introduce and reinforce the service framework across their departments.
IV	Sustain It — Follow-Up Visit	September 2026	On-site observation of framework adoption, leadership feedback sessions, and executive guidance for continued reinforcement. Exact dates confirmed with Etihad leadership.

SCHEDULING FLEXIBILITY — Beyond the Magic recognizes that Etihad's operational calendar and leadership availability will shape the final engagement schedule. The windows above represent our recommended sequencing. We are prepared to adjust timing in close coordination with Etihad's priorities while preserving the integrity of the engagement arc.

LEADERSHIP PARTICIPATION

Who Needs to Be in the Room

Sustained service alignment is built through leadership — not delivered to it. The success of this engagement depends on the right people from Etihad being present at the right moments.

Beyond the Magic will have practitioners working both on-site and behind the scenes throughout each phase. In parallel, Etihad will need to designate leaders from all three operational environments who can commit the time required to shape and own the framework.

For major on-site working sessions, participants should expect approximately two full days of commitment per session. Designated leaders will also be engaged through collaborative meetings, review cycles, and internal communication throughout the engagement.

PARTICIPANT GROUP	TIME COMMITMENT	WHAT THEIR INVOLVEMENT LOOKS LIKE
Senior Leaders All Three Departments	~2 days on-site + coordination meetings	Participate in alignment sessions to define the common purpose and service standards guiding disruption recovery — ensuring the framework reflects Etihad's hospitality values, not assumptions about them.
Operational Leaders (Champions Team)	~2 days on-site + review cycles	Translate service standards into observable behaviors for their departments, bridging strategic intent and frontline execution. They review draft materials to confirm content reflects operational realities.
Frontline Representatives Guest Services · Contact Center · Flight Crew	45–60 min per team (per department)	Provide direct operational insight during discovery. The right frontline voices — not simply available personnel — shape the framework from the ground up, ensuring it reflects how disruption recovery truly unfolds.
Activation Program Participants 30–40 Leaders	~4 days on-site + department follow-through	Supervisors, managers, and senior team members prepared to introduce and reinforce the framework within their teams. Commitment continues after the on-site program through daily briefings, coaching, and standard reinforcement.

By engaging both senior leaders and operational leaders throughout the process, the program creates a leadership network capable of sustaining the service framework across departments long after the engagement is complete.

MEASUREMENT & EVALUATION

Measurement & Success Indicators

Sustainable service alignment is only as strong as the organization's ability to recognize when it is working and when it requires reinforcement. The success of this engagement will be evaluated through four indicators that examine both leadership behavior and the guest experience it produces.

Leadership Alignment Feedback

Leaders participating in alignment sessions provide structured feedback on the clarity of service standards and their confidence in applying recovery expectations across their teams.

Activation Program Adoption

Operational leaders report on how effectively the service framework has been introduced and embedded within daily team routines, briefings, and coaching interactions.

Operational Consistency Observations

Follow-up observations during the Sustain It phase directly assess how consistently service standards are being demonstrated across contact center, airport, and flight crew teams.

Guest Experience Consistency

The quality of guest interactions during disruption events — measured through tone, communication consistency, and recovery handling — reflects the alignment achieved across all participating departments.

Together, these four indicators provide Etihad leadership with a clear and ongoing view of how the service framework is taking hold across operational teams — and where targeted reinforcement will have the greatest impact on the guest experience.

MEASUREMENT & EVALUATION

Key Performance Indicators

In addition to the four qualitative success indicators, Beyond the Magic will work with Etihad to identify 3 to 5 targeted KPIs across three audiences — staff, leaders, and guests. These are not general satisfaction scores. They are precise, engagement-specific indicators tied directly to the service behaviors, communication standards, and recovery consistency that this framework is designed to produce.

AUDIENCE	FOCUS AREA	WHAT WE MEASURE
Staff Frontline Teams	Confidence & Clarity	Staff readiness to apply service standards during disruption events — confidence in the framework, clarity of role expectations, and consistency of behavior across departments.
Leaders All Participating Depts.	Reinforcement & Adoption	How consistently leaders are reinforcing the service framework within daily operations — including coaching frequency, standard-setting behavior, and alignment with the common purpose.
Guests Disruption Touchpoints	Recovery Experience	Guest perception of the airline's communication, professionalism, and care during disruption events — specifically across the contact center, airport, and flight crew interactions this engagement is designed to strengthen.

The specific KPIs will be defined collaboratively during the Architect It operational discovery sessions and confirmed during the Phase II — Build It Senior Leader Alignment. Once established, these metrics become the baseline against which post-rollout performance is evaluated, providing Etihad leadership with clear, evidence-based recommendations for further strengthening the program over time.

Survey Tool Flexibility

KPI measurement can be conducted through Etihad's existing survey infrastructure at no additional cost. Alternatively, Beyond the Magic can procure and manage a dedicated third-party surveying tool, billed separately, providing an independent measurement channel aligned to the service framework. The preferred approach will be confirmed during Phase I — Architect It.

INVESTMENT

Investment Strategy

The investment structure for this engagement is organized across three tiers of engagement depth. Each tier follows the same four-phase methodology — Phases I and II carry an identical investment across all options. The distinction between tiers reflects the depth of leadership activation in Phase III and the addition of structured post-rollout assurance in Phase IV. All pricing is in United States Dollars (USD).

PHASE	OPTION A	OPTION B	OPTION C
	Framework Delivery	Framework & Activation	Framework, Activation & Assurance
PHASE I Architect It	$85,500	$85,500	$85,500
PHASE II Build It	$110,250	$110,250	$110,250
PHASE III Activate It	$247,500	$338,000	$338,000
PHASE IV Sustain It	—	—	$141,500
TOTAL INVESTMENT	$443,250	$533,750	$675,250

RECOMMENDED — Option B — Framework & Activation is the recommended engagement level. It reflects what Etihad requested and represents the investment required to ensure the service framework is not simply developed, but actively owned and practiced by operational leaders.

CLOSING

The moments guests remember most are rarely the ones that simply went as planned — they are the ones where the airline revealed its character under pressure.

For an airline that represents the hospitality tradition of Abu Dhabi, how Etihad responds in those moments is not an operational detail — it is a reflection of the brand itself. Beyond the Magic will work alongside Etihad leadership to ensure that every disruption becomes an opportunity to demonstrate professionalism, reinforce trust, and reflect the values that distinguish Etihad in the global aviation landscape.

We do not arrive, deliver, and depart. We arrive, we build, we transfer ownership, and we ensure that what is created endures — in every interaction, across every team, on every flight.
